Travel.

Medina del Campo is about 150 km from Madrid and 50 from Valladolid and can be easily reached from both cities both by train and bus.

Valladolid airport (Villanubla) is mainly served by domestic flights. Only an international connection with Paris is on schedule. Therefore flying to Madrid may be more convenient.

Traveling through Madrid:

All flights land at Barajas International Airport, which has separate national and international terminals. Travel to Medina del Campo can be continued by train or bus.

Trains leave from Chamartin Railroad Station. Exit from the Airport terminal and follow one of these possibilities:

1) By Taxi. Taxis from the airport to Chamartin railroad station cost around 2000 pts (US$14.00). There is usually no problem in getting a taxi at the indicated posts. We advise you not to accept offers from taxi drivers inside the airport building.

2) By Bus and Underground. Buses travel between the Airport and Plaza de Colón in downtown Madrid every 10-15 minutes, from 5am until 1:30am. The trip takes about 3/4 of an hour when traffic is not too congested; during rush hours one should allow for more than an hour. A one-way ticket costs 360 pts (US$2.50). The two underground stations closest to the airport bus terminal are Colón and Serrano. Chamartin station has also an underground station.

The train trip Madrid-Medina takes about 2 hours and a half depending on the type of train. Up-to-date information about timetables and prices can be found on the `http://www.renfe.es` web page.

The bus trip Madrid-Medina takes about 1,45 hours. A one-way ticket costs around 1300 pts (US$9.00).
